

Kennichi Kakudo, M.D., Ph.D.

Kennichi Kakudo, M.D., Ph.D. was former chairman of Department of Human Pathology (1992-2011), Wakayama Medical University and is professor, Department of Pathology, Kindai University Faculty of Medicine (2012-present), Japan. He was a meeting president of the 9th Annual Meeting of Japanese Society of Endocrine Pathology in 2005, the 2010 Annual Meeting of Endocrine Pathology Society (US-CAP companion meeting) (Washington DC 2010), the 52nd Fall Meeting of Japanese Society of Pathology (Wakayama 2005) and the 49th Fall Meeting of Japanese Society of Clinical Cytology (Kobe, 2010). He is a founding member of the Asian Working Group on Thyroid Cytology/Pathology, the international NIFTP working group and a core member of the Japan Consortium for Juvenile Thyroid Cancer. His principle research interests have been in histological diagnosis and prognostic factors of the thyroid, parathyroid, prostate and breast cancers. He has more than 300 publications in English in peer-review Journals. He is an author of book chapters in the 2017 WHO Classification of Tumors of endocrine organs, IARC, the second edition Endocrine Pathology, Differential Diagnosis and Molecular Advances, Springer and the second edition Bethesda system, Springer, and an editor of Thyroid FNA Cytology, Differential Diagnoses and Pitfalls, 1st and 2nd editions. He is also an author of several clinical guidelines including the Japan Thyroid Association, “Guidelines for Clinical Practice for the Management of Thyroid Nodules in Japan 2013 (in Japanese) and the Japanese Society of Thyroid Surgery, “the 5th and 6th edition General Rules for the Description of Thyroid Cancer”, (in Japanese).

