

Sanae Midorikawa, M.D., Ph.D.

Professor (Clinical Medicine),

Miyagi Gakuin Women's University

Co-representative, POFF

Core member, JCJTC

Dr. Midorikawa graduated from Fukushima Medical University in 1993. She has worked as a clinical endocrinologist for more than 20 years in Fukushima Medical University Hospital and related hospitals. After the Fukushima nuclear accident, she was involved in the thyroid cancer screening as a health surveillance for several years and faced various overdiagnosis issues. She has been engaged in communicating with residents and education of medical and non-medical students regarding overdiagnosis issues. She reported the growth pattern of thyroid cancer diagnosed from thyroid cancer screening in children and young adults. She has been core member of JCJTC and co-representative of NPO, POFF (Preventing Overdiagnosis from Fukushima) since 2020.