Application Procedure for Doctoral Degree (For Doctoral Course students)

Regarding the handling of doctoral degree applications (course-based Doctorate), please follow the instructions below. Prospective applicants for the doctoral degree are requested to thoroughly read this notice before applying.

Additionally, please check the submission deadlines for each application document on the website of Graduate School of Medicine.

1. To undergo the review of your dissertation, you are required to submit one main thesis. The main thesis must be a single-author paper if written in Japanese. For papers written in a foreign language, co-authorship is permitted, but the applicant must be the first author in principle. (If your main thesis has multiple first authors, please be sure to check the instructions on page 6 of this document.)

The paper must have been published (or be scheduled to be published) in a peer-reviewed journal.

(“eLife” will no longer be recognized as a peer-reviewed journal after March 19, 2025. However, as a transitional measure, papers that have completed their provisional application by March 19, 2025, will still be accepted.) Additionally, the journal in which the paper is published must be accessible through at least one of the following databases: PubMed, Scopus, or Web of Science.

2. The provisional application for degree conferment is accepted at any time starting from April of the fourth year. Since the degree review process consists of four stages—①Provisional Application, ②Preliminary Review, ③PhD Dissertation Defense, and ④Final Review—it is advised to submit the provisional application as early as possible. At the time of the provisional application, it is NOT necessary for the thesis to be printed or scheduled for publication (except for early completion).
3. Please submit the application documents for the dissertation defense to the Educational Affairs Section at least two weeks before the defense date. The PhD Dissertation Defense can be scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis; however, specific dates after January each year tend to become fully booked, and you may not be able to secure your preferred date. Therefore, if your paper is accepted or meets the conditions outlined below, please proceed with the defense as soon as scheduling arrangements can be made.

▼Conditions for Holding the PhD Dissertation Defense

You may apply for the PhD Dissertation Defense if your manuscript has received *provisional acceptance (1) from a journal and your academic supervisor deems it worthy of presentation.

(*1) A provisionally accepted manuscript refers to documentation, such as an email from the journal, indicating that the manuscript is provisionally accepted with phrases like "provisionally accepted" or "principally accepted." Please note that submission of email documentation or other proof of provisional acceptance is not required.

4. After the dissertation defense, please submit the final review documents. The submission deadline for March completion is the Friday of the same week as the final day of the February dissertation defense. At the time of submitting the final review documents, the paper must have been either officially published or scheduled for publication. In the case of scheduled publication, a Certificate of Scheduled Publication (*1) will be required. (*1: Refer to P11 [Note 3] for details.)

For students extending their enrollment (repeaters) and those who have withdrawn after completing course credits and wish to obtain their degree partway through the academic year, please submit the final review documents by the Friday of the same week as the last day of the dissertation defense held in the month preceding the Doctoral Program Committee of Medicine you wish to undergo review (held on the second Thursday of each month, except for changes in August, February, and March). (Refer to the calendar on the next page.)

The completion date for months other than September and March is the last day of each month (e.g., for completion in August 2026, the date is August 31).

Example: If you wish to obtain your degree in September 2026, you need to conduct the dissertation defense by August 2026.

①Provisional Application (KARI-SHINSEI):

Determination of "Preliminary Reviewers" and "Main and Sub-examiners" by the PhD Qualification Committee.

Based on recommendations from the applicant's PI (referring to the head of the affiliated department, the same hereafter), one main examiner and two sub-examiners (who also serve as the preliminary reviewers) will be decided. Applications submitted by the 20th of each month (the previous day if it falls on a weekend or holiday) will be reviewed at the Doctoral Qualification Examination Committee the following month, where the preliminary reviewers and the main and sub-examiners will be decided. Notification of the decision regarding the main and sub-examiners will be sent to them around the 10th of the following month. Note that sub-examiners may include faculty members other than those recommended by the applicant's PI.

[Application Deadline: By the 20th of each month]

*If it falls on a weekend or Holiday the deadline will be moved forward

In principle, it is desirable that co-authors of the main thesis do not serve as sub-examiners (preliminary reviewers).

▼ In cases where the main examiner or sub-examiner has retired.

▼ When a new professor takes over the affiliated research lab, the main examiner is changed from the acting professor to the new professor.

▼ Regarding the PhD dissertation defense

1. The PhD dissertation defenses will primarily be held online. However, they may be conducted in-person at the discretion of the supervising professor (main examiner).
2. Up to two sessions can be held simultaneously: either two online meetings or one online and one in-person meeting. Simultaneous in-person meetings (two at a time) are not permitted.
3. The PhD dissertation defense is generally held between 9:00AM and 5:00PM. For online sessions, the supervising professor may decide to hold them outside these hours (excluding early morning to late-night times) to accommodate student attendance.
4. The schedule for each session follows a set time frame of 30 minutes: 13 minutes for presentation, 7 minutes for discussion, and 10 minutes for setup and transition.

[Each hour is divided into two slots starting at 00 minutes or 30 minutes past the hour]

5. For in-person PhD dissertation defenses, students can conduct a rehearsal (test screening) the day before their defense. If the day before is a weekend or public holiday, the rehearsal will be held on the preceding weekday. The location and time for the rehearsal will be announced via group email one week before the defense.
6. Hybrid formats (mixing online and in-person modes) for the PhD dissertation defenses are not allowed.
7. Documents for the main and sub-examiners to be used on the day of the defense must be provided in electronic format using the ICHO document system.

▼ Regarding the Consent Form

Consent form for the main thesis (co-authored thesis in a foreign language) related to the degree application:

- (1) If the co-author is Japanese, please use the consent form.

Note: Even if the Japanese co-author resides overseas, an original copy with a seal is required.

- (2) If the co-author is a foreigner, whether residing in Japan or abroad, and cannot use the consent form (e.g., due to the form being in Japanese), the degree applicant must obtain a document equivalent to the consent form from the co-author. However, scan data of the document is acceptable ONLY if the co-author is residing abroad. The letter must include at least the following contents:

- ① Author names of the thesis (including co-authors), title, name of the journal, volume, and page numbers.
- ② A statement indicating no objection to the use of the thesis by Mr./Ms. A for the degree application to the Graduate School of Medicine, The University of Osaka.
[Example] "I have no objection to Mr./Ms. A's usage of this thesis as his/her PhD thesis."
- ③ Addressee (Mr./Ms. A or the Dean of the Graduate School)
- ④ The affiliation (name of the research institution), position, name, and handwritten signature of the foreign co-author (electronic signatures are not acceptable).

▼ Confirmation Form for Internet Publication of Doctoral Dissertation (OUKA Publication Confirmation)

- Since the 2013 academic year (Heisei 25), it has been mandatory to publish doctoral dissertation through the university's institutional repository. However, if there are copyright issues or other reasons, with the approval of the graduate school, a summary may be published instead of the full text.
- In the Graduate School of Medicine, since the requirement for degree application is publication in a peer-reviewed academic journal, it is considered that publishing the full text of the dissertation on The University of Osaka Institutional Knowledge Archive (OUKA) is not feasible due to copyright issues. Therefore, a summary (abstract of the dissertation content) will be published.
[Decision by the Doctoral Program Committee on May 9, 2013]

▼ Regarding the Main Thesis

- The submitted PDF file will be registered in OUKA and will be available for viewing upon request within the library.
- If the main text and figures are in separate files, please combine them into a single PDF file before submission.
